Why visit Skills London 2008?

It's the UK biggest careers and skills event for young people taking place at ExCeL London on Thursday 20 November, Friday 21 November and Saturday 22 November with free entry.

What can I do there?

You can try hands-on activities that bring the world of work to life meeting over 150 interactive stands from household names including Tesco, Boots, Hilton Hotel, HSBC, Thomas Cook, London Fire Brigade and the Metropolitan Police. Many, many more will be there including top training and education providers.

What makes it different from other events?

You can find out how to really get a job in the industries that interest you most. Whether that is the media or manufacturing, sport or science, entertainment or engineering. As Skills London 2008 is an interactive, hands-on event you will probably find out about a lot more besides!

In addition to all the exciting interactive careers features Skills London 2008 will also host the finals of a number of UK Skills competitions.

Who else can attend?

It's not easy making choices about what you want to do so you can bring along your family and friends to help you, and they can try the hands-on demonstration too. We are open Saturday from 10am – 4pm to make it easier for families to come along and you can also attend on the Thursday and Friday between 9.30am and 3pm.
